Dear Secretary Gessler:

A paper and pen signature is unique to a person. Having seen a great many signatures I can identify the hand writing style of that person. This really helps me determine if it really is that person's signature. Electronic signatures have no unique human qualities to them. Electronic documents don't qualify for the standards of notary acknowledgements.

As you may recall I am running for state representative district 13.

Thanks for considering my comments.

Sincerely,

Michael Hocevar
