My comments probably have nothing to do with the subjects listed but I have another subject. I am a naturalized US citizen (1959) and came here (legally) in 1954. When I registered to vote I had to show my certificate of citizenship. Now, I understand, one can register to vote on line "under perjury" etc. Who's actually checking to see if these people are US citizens? Also, you can bring your utility bill to show you live here. Again, does that prove they are citizens? I would appreciate to get to know if there really is a process as to the legality of the above.

Thanks for your time.
