I have been a notary for 30 years, first in Arizona and then Colorado. Arizona has had these rules in place since day one along with asking the notary to carry a bond.

I have always felt that the Colorado notary rules were too easy and needed to be tightened up. Having been a paralegal for many many years I have seen notaries sued over issues, especially with real estate, and I feel any new rules to tighten up and formalize this service are for the betterment of everyone.

I agree with your draft rules.

Thank you,
