As a charity that is LA based we do not target Colorado new donors but when donors from LA move to Colorado we continue that relationship with newsletters, appeals and internet facing. Is there no clear exemption for this type of donor relationship? Otherwise it puts excess burden on our administrative procedures to comply and identify 50 gifts. Three monthly donors would trigger such reporting. Surely that is not the intent. Our experience is that donors frequently retain ties to prior residences or work locations and do not stop giving just because of relocation. Thank you for your consideration.
