Hello Rule making,

If I understand this correctly you are giving convicted criminals the right to vote, whether they have done their time or on parole and are out on the streets. I do find this disturbing when someone is convicted of a crime they lose a lot of their rights and one of them is to influence the government. I do not agree with the changes you have proposed. convicted criminals and those that are on parole should never be able to influence government. They lost their chance when they decided to become criminals and they should not be granted rights that has long been established.

thanks
